"Nothing worth doing as the work of life is without details that are dull."

They fall, and they alone, who have not striven. —Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

We suffer ourselves to be too much concerned about a little poverty but such consideration should not move us in the choice of that which is to be the business and justification of so great a portion of our lives; and like the missionary, the patriot, or the philosopher, we should all choose that poor and brave career in which we can do the most for mankind.

Work is a great blessing. You can not see now, but some day you will say that you were fortunate in your best days because you were compelled to work. Because you cannot get power to do things save by doing them. Look over the successful men and women. Get their history. Nearly every one was compelled to work in his or her life. They toughened their muscles by hard work and sharpened their brains by looking out for themselves.

LEAKS IN THE HOME.

There on my list is irregularity of meals. When the husband works in a mill or factory, the meals have to be somewhere near on time, but the farmer, the hotel, or any man whose work is near his home, is severely handicapped if his meals are irregular and he is kept guessing when they will come. It is not always the idle slatternly housekeeper who does this way, either. Oftentimes the woman is extremely neat, and when the meals are ready they are delicious and well cooked, but the breakfast comes when it is ready, dinner any old time from 12 till 2:30, supper when the spirit moves to get it. Isn't it enough to drive any man to despair? It has been the ruin of many men, this very same irregularly cooked food and irregularly served meals, and the woman who is too idle and incompetent to properly cook and regularly serve the meals to her family is not worthy the name of housekeeper, and she is responsible for two of the worst leaks we can find in the home.

It is an old but true saying that a man's wife makes or mars his life, and if a woman does not do her share, the leaks on the farm can never be stopped. It is true, and a lax, frivolous, disinterested wife has spoiled many a young man's success. On the other hand, mother is not to blame for all the leak in the home, and father must help her or they can never be stopped.

One of the most sensitive subjects to a woman is her cooking, and she is liable to every word of censure or praise. How, then, must it seem to a mother, who has done her best to prepare a good, wholesome meal for her family, to have it found fault with?

SMOTHERING SPELLS

Sour Stomach, Heart Burn

In October, 1910, we received a letter from Mrs. Hall, from which we make the following extracts:

"About twelve years ago my health began to fail. I could not eat anything without suffering for it. I had heart burn, sour stomach, palpitation of the heart, smothering spells, pains in my sides and back. In fact, I suffered all over, and a cough almost like consumption. Doctors failed to relieve me. In fact, they didn't seem to know what ailed me. I continued to grow worse until I was able to sit up only a part of the time. I had almost lost all hopes of ever being any better."

"That one day some one threw some books in at my door. I read them and found them to be Peruna books. They described my feeling so truly I sent at once and got a bottle and began taking it. You pronounced my almost systemic catarrh, and gave me some advice."

"When I had taken two and one-half bottles I began to eat without suffering. I continued to improve. When I had taken eight I was like a new person. That was nine years ago."

"I think Peruna the greatest remedy ever made for so many ailments are due to catarrhal trouble. I would advise any one afflicted with catarrh to take Peruna and I am sure it will leave."

In the Revised "Tide of Life" we have many similar testimonials which would advise any one afflicted with catarrh to take Peruna and I am sure it will leave."

People who object to liquid medicine can now obtain Peruna Tablets.

and picked over, one wanting something different, another wanting it cooked more and so on down the list. Almost always the family have formed a habit of fussing and fault-finding without any intention of doing anything disagreeable. Father is responsible for a good deal of this leak and can check it if he chooses. For if he is careful not to make remarks about his food unless he praises, and checks a few times such remarks in the children, just see how quickly little son and daughter will do as father does.

I was one of a family of nine children. I had a very wise father and mother in some ways. Mother was an excellent cook and father always provided well for his table, but we ate what was on the table and no remarks or we went without, and we most always ate, we didn't go without.

How different from another family that I know—six in all, five besides the mother—and to see her get breakfast—two kinds of eggs, for one doesn't eat cornmeal and one doesn't eat graham; one drinks cocoa, one tea, and three coffee; one egg is boiled hard, one soft, one dropped, one scrambled, and one omitted. Mother said here any old way, for, after all, goodness knows they are nothing but eggs. Father is most apt to blame for this, too, for if he sits down to a table, eats what is put before him and says nothing, little son and daughter won't do very much fussing either, for he won't allow it. I do not mean eating food which is indigestible to us nor the kinds for which we have an aversion that we cannot overcome, but this constant fussing at the table over the food, the fussing which causes so much work and worry for the mother and is one of the worst leaks in the home.

The last leak on my list is the continual picking up in the home. What is it that most always gives out first in the home—the most precious thing after we have lost it—the mother's strength—and this constant tidying up and picking up has helped to use up that strength. Here is another leak that the father can greatly remedy. I do not mean for him to spend his time cleaning house, but is there any need of his throwing his coat on one chair, his hat in another, dropping his shoes on the door or kicking them under the table, putting his cigar ashes on any dish he happens to find and then leaving them all for mother to pick up? How are you going to make little son and daughter understand that they must not leave their playthings and clothes for mother to pick when they see father do that very thing—the father who seems to them to be all that is good and great? I think I hear someone say that there is no need of this if the mother does her duty. Well, I do know of one place where each one picks up as he should, but I am speaking of a home and not of a nagging place.

Thoughtlessness is the cause of this leak more than laziness. I have an acquaintance who has two young men boarders besides her husband, and they all persisted in leaving their shoes and coats in the middle of the floor. So she told them the next time she found any of their shoes or clothes on the floor, she would throw them down cellar. She threw her husband's down twice and the others down two or three times, and that was enough; she didn't have to tire her back any more picking up shoes and coats. So I thought, I would try it with my family. I worked real well for a few days, but one morning I looked around my husband and decided not to try it again. There wasn't room down cellar.

The first solution I ever saw tried on this point of eternally picking up was for each member of the family to go around every night or every morning and pick up his or her own things. It was a great help to the mother and saved her much hard work.

This completes my list of what I consider some of the worst leaks in our average homes. The first and only way to stop them is to form a post-courtesy, with the father as president, the mother as superintendent, and the children as aids. Then they will each use help to check the leaks in the home, each one will feel responsible for the comfort and well being of the home, and when "The last hot feelings of the sun are fading over yonder hill, The battle of the day is done, And all is hush and peace and all is quiet now along the shore. What thing shall I do now, I ask, This shining calm beside the fire. Shall be the world for you and me."

Diseases of Children.

I find that worms is one of the most common of children's diseases—either pinworms or stomach worms.

These parasites attack the stomach and bowels and make their presence felt through deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full belly, pale face or leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points sticking out on tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

For over 60 years, Dr. Trac's Elixir, my father's discovery, has been the standard remedy for worms and stomach disorders. Take no chances, but use the time-tried remedy—Dr. Trac's Elixir, the Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. At all dealers, 35c, 50c and $1.00. Advice free. Write.

NEXT WINTER LAYERS.

This is a good month to commence selecting the flock that is to be carried through next winter. It does not pay to feed unprofitable birds and care for them so long. That faithful old hen that is being kept for the good it has done will eat at least a dollar's worth of feed in a year, even if it is kept on a farm and there seems to be plenty of feed. By allowing old hens to live on the place, instead of some young pullet that will lay well, you are losing money. If you will look over your flock carefully you can cull out the unprofitable fowls. In selecting the winter flock, you should pick out the best layers. There will be no difficulty about this if you use the trap nest system and keep a record of each hen. However well this may pay for any one who makes a business of poultry raising, some farmers will find it impracticable for their use, and some other method must be used. The general appearance of the hen is the best indication. A fairly inclined hen is not apt to be a good layer and should be culled out of the flock that is to be carried through the winter. A hen with a pale comb and dull eyes is likely not a good layer. Rough looking plumage before the molt is not a good sign, but a flock that is molting can hardly be judged fairly. The hot summer and unfavorable conditions are very trying on the flock, and the hen that is still laying at this time of the year is generally strongly constituted. If she shows a bright, quick, alert, healthy condition in September, she is very likely to be the laying hen next winter. In selecting pullets for layers choose the first to mature. A retarded growth nearly always impairs the ability to lay eggs. A well built and fully developed body, perfect in all its parts, is what it takes to make a good layer.

The Family Cough Medicine

In every home there should be a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, ready for immediate use when any member of the family contracts a cold or a cough. Prompt use will stop the spread of sickness. S. A. Hill, of Maine, writes: "My whole family depends upon Dr. King's New Discovery as the best cough and cold medicine in the world. Two 50c bottles saved me of pneumonia." Thousands of other families have been equally benefited and depend entirely upon Dr. King's New Discovery to cure their coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles. Every one who has tried it, and all who have not, should have a bottle.

THE WATER CURE

Few People Drink Enough Water

To maintain the proper amount of fluid in the system, to eliminate through the lungs and kidneys the waste products of the body, if drinking a glass upon rising and between meals does not keep your bowels active and digestion good, remember the old reliable "Dr. P." At Scott's Medicine has been successfully used for sixty years. Read this letter: "I used to be subject to severe attacks of Bile and Bile Headaches. As I feel one coming on, I take the 'Dr. P.' Atwood's Medicine. It helps me every time. I will as soon be without water in the house as 'Dr. P.' Atwood's Medicine."

Mrs. E. A. Noble, of Whitefield, Me., writes: "I am free from the aching."

"The Present and Future of Apple Culture," by a gentleman of wide experience cannot help being deeply interesting. S. H. Fulton has been connected with the Michigan and Georgia Experiment Station, also the Washington department, which he left a few years back to become manager of the Sleepy Creek Orchard Co., a large commercial orchard. They are growing peaches and apples, the latter is not yet old enough to produce much fruit, but while waiting they have raised tomatatoes and put up a cannery to handle them. They are also raising cherries in a commercial way. Mr. Fulton delivers an address before the American Pomological Society at Washington on the 19th and then comes to us.

"Our older orchardists say when the bees don't work at blossom time we get no fruit. Let us learn more about our busy little friends and listen to the message from Dr. Gates of Amherst."

"And last but not least, we all want to see that fruit grading machine at work, and after we see it I think we will all realize that the only way to make a perfect pack of box apples is to own one. Watch H. P. Sweetair box some fruit and see how it simplifies his work."

The official program can be secured of the secretary, E. L. White, Bowdoin ham, Me., soon.

PASS IT ON.

Have you had a kindness shown?
Pass it on.
Was not given for these alone
Pass it on.
Let it travel down the years,
Let it wipe another's tears,
Till it bears the deed appears—
Pass it on.

Did you hear the loving word—
Pass it on—
Take the singing of a bird?
Pass it on.
Let its music live and grow,
Let it cheer another's woe,
You have reaped what others sow—
Pass it on.

Take the sunshine of a smile—
Pass it on.
Wiping out a little while?
Pass it on.
Aged beam the little thing,
Still it makes the flowers of spring,
Makes the silent birds to sing—
Pass it on.

Have you found the heavenly light?
Pass it on.
Were you groping in the night,
Brightest guide—
Hold the lighted lamp on high,
Let it show to someone else;
He may live who else would die—
Pass it on.

Be not selfish to the great,
Pass it on.
Look upon the brother's need,
Pass it on.
Love for self, you have in vain,
Love for Christ, you have again,
Take for him, with him you gain—
Pass it on.

DO I LOVE HER?

I have asked myself the question, asked it often of my heart,
"Did I feel the hot blood rushing into every artery part,
Love beat that and stopped decaying, what a sensation then and
You have felt your pulses quiver as the pulse of her feet,
You have heard your whole soul thrill
As at the note her lips repeat.

Do I love her?
I had thought that love was finite,
Craving for the breath of prayer,
But the glimmer of a sacred finger leg to the summer air,
Whispering words forever at the sound
of one or more.

Tell me every gleam that in snow melt
the splendor of her face,
And I'll be the dark heart glow,
Dedicated to the perfect grace.

Do I love her?
I have asked that most delicate,
most delicate of love's spirit,
In a word of love transmitted that the angel has and may
I don't open the way to heaven at the altar of my love.

Do I love her?
I have asked the love of the night,
all the love of the night,

Safety at Sea.

There has been a warm time in the Senate, owing to the discussion of the bill providing for better safety at sea, through more rigid laws pertaining to the regulation of seamen and apparatus. Senator La Follette made one of his wonderful fights for his substitute bill, with which he upset the committee measure. Senators Burton and Bacon made a determined but ineffectual attempt to strike out all provisions in conflict with existing treaties. At one stage of the proceedings Mr. Burton was reminded by Senator Lane of Oregon that he evidenced a surprising amount of lack of knowledge of the subject he was discussing. "From the way he talks," said Lane, "he knows nothing about the proposition of which he speaks." There were numerous amendments offered to the substitute bill, but most of them came to grief. However, Senator Page made a fight for his own Lake Champlain, and stated that the navigation of the "Vermont" that the boat was manned by competent young men from Vermont and New York, who under the law would not be classed as "able seamen." Senator Dillingham remarked that the same requirement that applied to Lake Champlain might also refer to Lake George as well as to lakes of the character through New England and elsewhere. The small inland excursion boats are exempted from the general legislation by the Page amendment, which provides that where the line of travel "is at no part more than three and one-half miles from shore," that the new bill will not apply. A measure along these same lines, which is said was not so drastic as the La Follette measure, was vetoed last year by President Taft. In the La Follette bill the President is directed to abrogate all treaties that conflict with the new law. The bill requires better and more sanitary quarters for seamen and working conditions on board ships, restricts the hours of labor, abolishes arrest and imprisonment for desertion, and requires that upon application, all seamen shall be given one-half the pay when a ship enters any port to land or discharge a cargo. A full equipment for lifeboats for all seamen on board is required, and lifeboat drills, both in harbor and at sea, are compulsory. Under this law no vessel can depart from any port in the United States unless she has on board a crew, not less than seventy-five per cent. of which, in each department, is able to understand any order given by the officers.

To Curtail Senatorial Oratory. Senator Kern, the Democratic leader of the Senate, makes the statement that "within six weeks a determined fight on the rules of the Senate, particularly that part that permits unlimited debate, will be played in the Senate," and he says it may be a contest. It will be remembered that earlier in the session Senator Owen of California introduced a bill to apply to the members of the Senate who cannot be otherwise re-elected. It is now in its found that in the currency legislation, which serves as a good illustration, that the Senators may defeat action upon the bill by talking it to death, during the closing hours of Congress. There is a growing feeling that legislation should not be disposed of in this manner, and that whether good or bad it should command attention strictly upon its merit.

Massachusetts and New Jersey. It is announced that Secretary Bryan and Senator Ollie James, as representatives of the national Administration, will lead the spell binders who will go into the New Jersey campaign. All the Democratic, Republican, and Progressive party committees are actively engaged in the New Jersey and Massachusetts fight and have selected some of their best orators to go into these states.

Suggests Abolishing the Monroe Doctrine.

There is no editor in the United States capable of stirring up more controversy than Colonel Henry Waterson, the distinguished gentleman who presides over the destinies of the Louisville Courier-Journal. Colonel Waterson warmly defended his fellow-Colonel Harvey, of Harper's Weekly, whose support was displeasing to Mr. Wilson before the Baltimore Convention. Mr. Waterson has discovered his time-honored Monroe Doctrine is "no longer useful." "It would seem to be a good time for fishing the Monroe Doctrine out of the closet of old clothes," says the Colonel, after which he would take a long last look at it, before transferring it to the back closet of things no longer useful." Great Senators of the United States have been brought to express their views upon this topic, and they all defend the sacred old relic. Senator Shafroth of Colorado says: "It is unyielding in my determination to uphold the Monroe Doctrine at all hazards." Senator Dristow of Kansas says he does not believe in abolishing the Monroe Doctrine, or the principles upon which it was founded, and declares such a thing would be the most unpopular thing that could be proposed in this country. "The man in public life who suggests this will live to regret it," he says, to which Senator Burton of Ohio adds: "I am not one of those who believe that the Monroe Doctrine has reached the stage of decadence and should be cast aside."

Senator Bacon, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, expresses his opinion as follows: "I do not agree with the suggestion that the Monroe Doctrine is obsolete, and no longer of value to the United States. Its provisions are, in my opinion, now more useful to the peace and safety of the United States than in the days of Panning and the Holy Alliance." Senator Martine of New Jersey fairly exploded at the mere suggestion: "Banish the Monroe Doctrine! Never! Instead of giving it up we should talk about enforcing it and giving it life and health and strength."

Quoting Wilson and Bryan. The way Mr. Hobson and other influential politicians have been quoting President Wilson and Secretary Bryan to prove their cases indicates that the writings and speeches of these illustrious gentlemen are quite as elastic as Holy Writ, which is the true foundation for so many faiths and beliefs. It will be remembered that a year ago Mr. Bryan declared that Governor Harmon of Ohio and Mr. Underwood were reactionary candidates for the Presidency. At about the same time he made equally uncompromising allusions to Speaker Clark. In these latter days Mr. Bryan is keeping on good terms with all the Democratic leaders, and in view of his determination to be of the greatest possible value to the Administration it is as awkward to recall what he said, as it is to read extracts from books written by Mr. Wilson, which the President upon one or two occasions jokingly referred to as having been written at a time "when he knew nothing about the subjects."

Panama Canal Tolls.

Representative Adamson, chairman of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, will make a fight to suspend the free tolls to American ships until such time as the canal is self-sustaining and the dispute with Great Britain has been satisfactorily settled. There is a growing conviction in Washington that while it may be entirely just and proper that the United States should claim special privileges for its vessels passing through the canal, and exempt them from tolls, that the provisions of our treaty with Great Britain rather clearly make our declared policy an act of bad faith. It is known that President Taft and former President Roosevelt took this view of the situation, and now it is claimed that Wilson has reached the same conclusion. Great Britain has formally accepted the invitation of the United States to send its warships to join in the great opening of the Panama Canal, but Russia has stated that it may send on the occasion its naval officers for the event. Russia wants it to be known that "any value of transportation for our own ships has caused the day's sailing."

HEALTH OF HOME AND SCHOOL.

By the State Board of Health of Maine.

Vital Statistics; Uses and Value.

The boy was born fifteen years ago or more. His parents thought they named him James Nelson and they call him Jimmie. But his name in the records of the town clerk is Joseph Nelson. Now who is he? Has Jim or Joe a legal name? If he has what is it? And who is he? And how can he in the future identify himself? His parents came from Canada, but Jimmie was born in Maine, and on that point the record is correct. But the official record says that the birth occurred seventeen years ago. Nevertheless he is considerably under age. Now such a mixup in the record may be bad for the boy. There are quite a number of unpleasant things which may happen to the boy later in life because of these blunders in the record.

Some Things which may Happen.

Some things in the future which may trouble this boy and result in expense or loss may be gathered from the following statements of troubles which have actually befallen other persons because a correct record of a birth or a marriage or a death had not been made. A young man was lately a candidate for office in Maine. His parents came from Canada. He was born in Maine, but his birth was not recorded. His political opponents claimed that he was not a citizen of Maine and thus made trouble for him.

A young man from Maine was a candidate for appointment on the police force of Boston, but his birth had not been recorded. Trouble again.

Another young man from Maine in the employ of the mechanical department of one of the railway companies of Massachusetts was caused much trouble because he could not get proof of the time and place of his birth which he was required to furnish. His parents had failed in their duty to their child in that no record of his birth had been made.

Another man from Maine had received an appointment to a government position and was distressed because he was required to furnish proof of age and nativity. No record of his birth had been made.

A seventeen year old boy, born in Kansas, went on a visit to the earlier home of his parents in the old country. Returning he was held up as an immigrant at the port of New York and deportation to Europe was threatened. He was held in New York until, after much trouble, the mid-wife who attended at his birth was found and a record of his birth was made by his city clerk seventeen years after the date of his birth.

An American couple wished to be married in Germany. The marriage could not take place there because no public record of their births was available.

A senator of the legislature of Maine said that it cost one of his clients $50 to get proof of his marriage because no record of the marriage had been made.

A young man and his wife came from Switzerland and settled in this country. The father was killed by accident. The mother struggled on, making for herself and child a scant living, with wash and needle. Word came that the child's uncle in Switzerland had died, leaving $12,000 to the issue of his brother. But parents and physicians were both guilty of neglect in not having a record of the birth of this child made. The physician was dead. The certificate of birth could not be produced and the refusal of the Swiss government to turn over the money was a cruel disappointment to the deserving and needy mother and child.

As this reader is in preparation as clerk of a Maine town writes that he is called upon to furnish a birth record of a lady 75 years old, born in his town, but now living in England. He needs a record of her birth to enable her to get an old age pension, but no record can be found.

Other Uses of Vital Statistics.

Official records of births, marriages, and deaths are often required to determine the right to attend school, to enter certain occupations or to be exempt from certain occupations as under the child labor laws, to vote, to marry, to hold or dispose of property, to the employment in military or civil service, responsibility for crime or misdemeanor, exemption from jury or military duty, qualifications or disqualifications for certain public offices, to dispose of claims for insurance by proper evidence of the fact and the cause of death, for the purpose of settling pension claims. The pension officers are continually calling for proofs of births, marriages, or deaths and deserving claimants cannot fail to be proved. Nations, like individuals, are of short memory, and the records do not recall how we pulled the Japs out of their backs and saved them from annihilation.

which required evidence because proper records were not made.

These are some of the reasons why it is important that there should be an accurate record of every birth, marriage and death. There are, however, other reasons: as an aid in tracing the cause of sickness and of death and the prevention of disease; for the educational value of vital statistics, and, from the genealogical point of their aid in writing the histories of families and of nations.

Advice to Parents.

There are two reasons why parents should be sure that accurate records are made of every birth, marriage and death which occurs in their families. The first is that it is in the interest of the family to do so, and the other reason is that every good citizen should wish to comply with the requirements of the law. Even if the physician says that he will report the birth to the clerk of the town or city, be sure that he has done so, and be sure also that the record has been made correctly, and then be sure after the child is named that the name is correctly recorded. Look up the record and if an error is found have the town clerk make the correction as is provided in the law of 1913. It will cost you nothing to have it done and may save much trouble for you and yours.

The duty is upon parents as well as upon physicians to report births to the town clerk within six days, and the law does not release the parent from this duty until the names of the children have been reported to the clerk. (Blanks for reports of births or deaths may be had from town clerks or by addressing: State Registrar, Augusta, Maine.)

Intentions of marriage must be recorded by the town clerk five days before the certificate of marriage is granted. Intentions of marriage must be recorded in both towns when the parties to the proposed marriage live in different towns.

In the case of deaths the undertaker, householder, neighbor or other person removing a body or supervising the burial shall furnish the town clerk with a certificate giving the facts called for in the blank certificate of death, including the certificate of the physician as to the cause of death, and it is the duty of the physician promptly to make out the certificate of the cause of death and have it ready, and not wait to be asked for it.

On the presentation of this certificate of death a "burial permit" will be issued by the town clerk. This burial permit must be returned to the town clerk of the town in which the death occurred within six days after burial.

The law makes it the duty of town clerks and of the State Registrar to enforce this law relating to the registration of births, marriages and deaths. The penalty for willful neglect or refusal to perform any duty imposed by this law is a fine of not more than one hundred dollars for each offense.

SOUTH PARTS.

In honor of Miss Nellie E. Jackson of Portland, a recent guest of Mrs. Louise Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Briggs entertained a tea party at their home, Highland cottage, Friday night. The guests were Miss Nellie E. Jackson, Mrs. Louise J. Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Morton, Miss Mary Chase, Mrs. Catherine G. Briggs, Dr. Carl R. Briggs, and the host and hostess. Following the chicken supper with all its accompaniments, the party sat by the fireplace and while the huge log was blazing, sociability interlarded with piano solo, piano duet, violin and piano, and violin, piano and cello were much enjoyed.

The auction at Good Cheer Hall Saturday evening netted $30 for the ladies in the contest with the gentlemen. Saturday noon a baked bean dinner was served at Good Cheer Hall to a large party.

Mrs. Agnes L. Morton is spending the week with her son, Ralph H. Penfold and family in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Dayton Bolster were happily surprised Friday evening, when a party of fourteen prearranged by their daughter, Ruth, entered their home and in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Bolster's 50th wedding anniversary. Refreshments were served.

The Seneca Club will be entertained by Mrs. H. M. Stewart and Mrs. H. E. Wilson, Monday evening, Nov. 3d.

Mrs. A. A. Kendall of Portland will give a lecture and parliamentary bill to the Seneca Club, Nov. 10th.

CEDAR RAPIDS

ELECTRIC POWER WILL BE TRANSMITTED TO MANSION NEXT YEAR.

Description of the Work Now Going On to Develop 160,000 Horsepower in the St. Lawrence River West of Montreal.

The contractors on the Cedar Rapids Manufacturing and Power construction work are stated to be well ahead of the requirements of their contract, the work throughout the summer having proceeded smoothly. No undue obstacles being met with.

The progress report issued by the company describes the location as follows:

About fifty miles West of Montreal the St. Lawrence river widens out into Lake St. Francis. Above Lake St. Francis is a long series of rapids principally by the name of the largest one, the Long Sault. Below Lake St. Francis, and nearer Montreal, lies another expansion of the river named Lake St. Louis, and between these two lakes the St. Lawrence falls a distance of about 80 feet, made up principally of three rapids, viz: Coteau, The Cedars, and the Cascade. Thirty-two feet of this total fall is in the Cedar Rapids, thirty miles to the west of Montreal.

The St. Lawrence River is one of the greatest rivers in the world; it drains a territory of about 300,000 square miles of which a very large percentage is lake area, and it is unique among all the rivers in the world in the steadiness of its flow. The ratio of the flow in the lowest and in the highest years being 3 to 1.

Comparing this with the other large rivers of the continent, such as the St. Lawrence, which has a range of 75-1 and the Mississippi which has a range of about 25-1, it is evident that the St. Lawrence is remarkably uniform in its flow.

As a result of its magnitude, and of the fact that the greater proportion of the development would necessarily have to be made before any power could be obtained, the power stood idle until the control became vested in the joint interests of the Shawinigan Water and Power Company and the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company.

The rapids at the Cedar extend over a distance of about two miles. In order to use this fall, it is necessary to concentrate this difference of level at one point. To do this a canal is being constructed along the North Bank of the river. The outer wall of the canal is an artificial bank formed of excavated rock taken from the canal section and made watertight by clay filling on the inside.

This combination, rock-fill earth bank, is being built with ample factors of safety, and special precautions are being taken to prevent leakage or possible damage to this bank. As the maximum head against the bank will never be more than 30, it is evident that this type of construction, which is common throughout the world in the case of large water reservoirs, is the most economical, on account of the fact that all the materials for the construction of the bank are available at the site of the work.

The canal when finished will have its outer or smooth bank practically a straight line two miles long, and parallel thereto to a similar bank located on the natural flow of the river, and at a distance from the south bank of about 1,000 feet, and the total length of the canal from the ice dam above the lake-aux-Vaches to the power-house will be about 12,000 feet. Extending across the lower end of the canal and forming a dam, is the power-house structure itself. This structure is of concrete, and in the power house is concentrated the total fall of 32 feet by the difference of the level between the top and bottom of the Cedar Rapids.

Under its charter and contract with the Dominion Government, the Cedar Rapids Manufacturing and Power company has a right to take 50,000 cubic feet per second into its canal, which is practically a part of the river. This amount of water is sufficient to develop continuously 100,000 electrical horsepower.

The plans for the final development call for the installation of eighteen units of a normal capacity of 10,000 horsepower each, two of these units being regarded as spares.

In addition to the main units, there will be installed six water-driven exciter units. These exciter units have a capacity of 1,500 horsepower and operate at a speed of 150 R. P. M.

The people back of this development are planning things on a very extensive scale, commencing with January 1914 the Aluminum Co. of America will be using over one hundred thousand horsepower in the manufacture of Aluminum and Aluminum alloys. It is the intention of the men who own this large enterprise to make Massena a city of one hundred thousand people.

RED CROSS SEALS.

The Maine Anti-Tuberculosis Association is to inaugurate its Red Cross seal campaign this week, and from now until Christmas the seals will be sold in Maine cities and towns from Port Kent to Kittery. Mrs. G. H. Furbish, who for several years has been in charge of the sale conducted by the Central Maine Association, has been employed by the Maine Anti-Tuberculosis Association to make a canvass of the state and she will arrange with individuals and committees in the various towns and cities for the sale of the seals.

On her first trip, which begins this week, Mrs. Furbish will visit—Clinton, Dover, Foxcroft, Mills Junction, Millinocket and the towns on the Greenville branch of the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad. Her second trip will be through Aroostook county, after which she will visit Belfast, Rockland, Bath and other points along the Maine coast. Mrs. Furbish will then turn her attention to Western Maine, establishing her headquarters at Portland.

Regularly organized societies, employing a nurse or doing other active work, will be allowed, as heretofore, to retain 50 per cent. of the proceeds of all sales of the stamps. Of the remaining 50 per cent., half goes to the National, and half to the State Association.

All money coming into the treasury of the State Association as a result of the sales will be devoted to the employment of a State Nurse. She will visit localities not yet organized for tuberculosis work and, by co-operating with the physicians, will endeavor to demonstrate to people the pressing need of a vigorous anti-tuberculosis fight being made. This will offer a special inducement to committees which have not yet commenced active work, to sell the seals. The employment of a State Nurse has long been a cherished scheme of the State Association.

The sale of Red Cross Seals has been large in some localities of the state during the past three or four years. It has been particularly successful in Bangor, and in the territories covered by the Central Maine Association and the Washington County Association. There are many districts in the state where practically nothing has been done, however. It is to extend the work to these localities that Mrs. Furbish has been engaged by the State Association.

PASS IT ON.
Have you had a kindness shown?
Pass it on.
Tears not given for thee alone
Pass it on.
Let it travel down the years,
Let it wipe another's tears,
Till in heaven the deed appears—
Pass it on.

Did you hear the loving word—
Pass it on—
Take the sting of a brief
Pass it on.
Let its music live and grow,
Let it cheer another's woe;
You have reaped what others sow—
Pass it on.

Trace the sunshine of a smile—
Pass it on.
Smiling but a little while!
Pass it on.
April beams the little thing,
Still it makes the flowers of spring,
Makes the silent birds to sing—
Pass it on.

Have you found the heavenly light?
Pass it on.
Souls are groping in the night,
Daylight goes—
Hold the lighted lamp on high,
Be a star to someone's eye;
He may live who else would die—
Pass it on.

Be not selfish in thy greed,
Pass it on.
Look upon thy brother's need,
Pass it on.
Live for self, you live in vain,
Live for Christ, you live again;
Live for him, with him you reign—
Pass it on.

DO I LOVE HER?

By John M. Thornton.
Do I love her?
I have asked myself the question, asked it often of my heart,
Till I felt the hot blood rushing into every nerve and part.

Have her lips and parted cheeks
what a temptation they are!
You have felt your pulses quicken as the music of her feet,
You have heard your whole soul thrill
at the words her lips repeat.

DO I LOVE HER?

I had thought that love was finite,
Dying as the breath of prayer,
But the glimmer of a sudden finger-
ing to the extremity,
Yielding away forever at the sound
of one or more.

Tell my eyes grown dull in sorrow and the laughter of her face,
Tell me the dark best glow,
Tender to the perfect grace.

DO I LOVE HER?

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Events of Interest from the Seat of Government.

By J. E. Jones.

Safety at Sea.

There has been a warm time in the Senate, owing to the discussion of the bill providing for better safety at sea, through more rigid laws pertaining to the regulation of seamen and apparatus. Senator La Follette made one of his wonderful fights for his substitute bill, with which he upset the committee measure. Senators Burton and Bacon made a determined but ineffectual attempt to strike out all provisions in conflict with existing treaties. At one stage of the proceedings Mr. Burton was reminded by Senator Lane of Oregon that he evidenced a surprising amount of lack of knowledge of the subject he was discussing. "From the way he talks," said Lane, "he knows nothing about the proposition of which he speaks." There were numerous amendments offered to the substitute bill, but most of them came to grief. However, Senator Page made a fight for his own Lake Champlain, and stated that the navigation of the "Vermont" that the boat was manned by competent young men from Vermont and New York, who under the law would not be classed as "able seamen." Senator Dillingham remarked that the same requirement that applied to Lake Champlain might also refer to Lake George as well as to lakes of the character through New England and elsewhere. The small inland excursion boats are exempted from the general legislation by the Page amendment, which provides that where the line of travel "is at no part more than three and one half miles from shore," that the new bill will not apply. A measure along these same lines, which was said to be as drastic as the La Follette measure, was vetoed last year by President Taft. In the La Follette bill the President is directed to abrogate all treaties that conflict with the new law. The bill requires better and more sanitary quarters for seamen and working conditions on board ships, restricts the hours of labor, abolishes arrest and imprisonment for desertion, and requires that upon application, all seamen shall be given one half the pay due when a ship enters any port to load or discharge a cargo. A full equipment for lifeboats for all souls on board is required, and lifeboat drills, both in harbor and at sea, are compulsory. Under this law no vessel can depart from any port in the United States unless she has on board a crew, not less than seventy-five per cent, of which, in each department, is able to understand any order given by the officers.

To Curtail Senatorial Oratory.

Senator Keen, the Democratic leader of the Senate, makes the statement that "within six weeks a determined fight on the rules of the Senate, particularly that part that permits unlimited debate, will be staged in the Senate," and he says it may be successful. It will be remembered that earlier in the session Senator Owen of Oklahoma introduced a bill to apply to the Senators a rule that cannot be changed by a majority of the Senate.

HEALTH OF HOME AND SCHOOL.

By the State Board of Health of Maine.

Vital Statistics; Uses and Value.

The boy was born fifteen years ago or more. His parents thought they named him James Nelson and they call him Jimmie. But his name in the records of the town clerk is Joseph Nelson. Now who is he? Has Jim or Joe a legal name? If he has what is it? And who is he? And how can he in the future identify himself? His parents came from Canada, but Jimmie was born in Maine, and on that point the record is correct. But the official record says that the birth occurred seventeen years ago. Nevertheless he is considerably under age. Now such a mixup in the record may be bad for the boy. There are quite a number of unpleasant things which may happen to the boy later in life because of these blunders in the record.

Some Things which may Happen.

Some things in the future which may trouble this boy and result in expense or loss may be gathered from the following statements of troubles which have actually befallen other persons because a correct record of a birth or a marriage or a death had not been made.

A young man was lately a candidate for office in Maine.

His parents came from Canada. He was born in Maine, but his birth was not recorded. His political opponents claimed that he was not a citizen of Maine and thus made trouble for him.

A young man from Maine was a candidate for appointment on the police force of Boston.

but his birth had not been recorded. Trouble again.

Another young man from Maine in the employ of the mechanical department of one of the railway companies of Massachusetts was caused much trouble because he could not get proof of the time and place of his birth which he was required to furnish.

His parents had failed in their duty to their child in that no record of his birth had been made.

Another man from Maine had received an appointment to a government position and was distressed because he was required to furnish proof of age and nativity.

No record of his birth had been made.

A seventeen year old boy, born in Kansas, went on a visit to the earlier home of his parents in the old country.

Returning he was held up as an immigrant at the port of New York and deportation to Europe was threatened. He was held in New York until, after much trouble, the mid-wife who attended at his birth was found and a record of his birth was made by his city clerk seventeen years after the date of his birth.

An American couple wished to be married in Germany.

The marriage could not take place there because no public record of their births was available.

A senator of the legislature of Maine said that it cost one of his clients $50 to get proof of his marriage because no record of the marriage had been made.

A young man and his wife came from Switzerland and settled in this country.

The father was killed by accident. The mother struggled on, making for herself and child a scant living, with washboard and needle. Word came that the child's uncle in Switzerland had died, leaving $12,000 to the issue of his brother. But parents and physicians were both guilty of neglect in not having a record of the birth of this child made. The physician was dead. The certificate of birth could not be produced and the refusal of the Swiss government to turn over the money was a cruel disappointment to the deserving and needy mother and child.

As this matter is in preparation a clerk of a Maine town wishes that he is called upon to furnish a birth record of a lady 70 years old, born in his town, but now living in England. She needs a record of her birth to enable her to get an old age pension, but no record can be found.

Other Uses of Vital Statistics.

Official records of births, marriages and deaths are often required to determine the right to attend school, to enter certain occupations or to be exempt from certain occupations as under the child labor laws, to vote, to marry, to hold or dispose of property, to the employment in military or civil service, responsibility for crime or misdemeanor, exemption from jury or military duty, qualifications or disqualifications for certain public offices, to dispose of claims for insurance by proper evidence of the fact and the cause of death, for the purpose of settling pension claims. The pension officers are continually calling for proofs of births, marriages, or deaths, and receiving statements cannot be given without proper evidence.

Not to be Permitted.

Nations, like individuals, are of short memory, and the Nations do not recall how we pulled the Japs off their backs and saved them from annihilation.

nish required evidence because proper records were not made.

These are some of the reasons why it is important that there should be an accurate record of every birth, marriage and death. There are, however, other reasons: as an aid in tracing the cause of sickness and of death and the prevention of disease; for the educational value of vital statistics, and from the genealogical point of their aid in writing the histories of families and of nations.

Advice to Parents.

There are two reasons why parents should be sure that accurate records are made of every birth, marriage and death which occurs in their families. The first is that it is in the interest of the family to do so, and the other reason is that every good citizen should wish to comply with the requirements of the law. Even if the physician says that he will report the birth to the clerk of the town or city, be sure that he has done so, and be sure also that the record has been made correctly, and then be sure after the child is named that the name is correctly recorded. Look up the record and if an error is found have the town clerk make the correction as is provided in the law of 1913. It will cost you nothing to have it done and may save much trouble for you and yours.

The duty is upon parents as well as upon physicians to report births to the town clerk within six days, and the law does not release the parent from this duty until the names of the children have been reported to the clerk.

(Blanks for reports of births or deaths may be had from town clerks or by addressing: State Registrar, Augusta, Maine.)

Intentions of marriage must be recorded by the town clerk five days before the certificate of marriage is granted.

Intentions of marriage must be recorded in both towns when the parties to the proposed marriage live in different towns.

In the case of deaths the undertaker, householder, neighbor or other person removing a body or supervising the burial shall furnish the town clerk with a certificate giving the facts called for in the blank certificate of death, including the certificate of the physician as to the cause of death, and it is the duty of the physician promptly to make out the certificate of the cause of death and have it ready, and not wait to be asked for it.

On the presentation of this certificate of death a "burial permit" will be issued by the town clerk.

This burial permit must be returned to the town clerk of the town in which the death occurred within six days after burial.

The law makes it the duty of town clerks and of the State Registrar to enforce this law relating to the registration of births, marriages and deaths.

The penalty for willful neglect or refusal to perform any duty imposed by this law is a fine of not more than one hundred dollars for each offense.

SOUTH PARIS.

In honor of Miss Nellie E. Jackson of Portland, a recent guest of Mrs. Louise Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Briggs entertained a tea party at their home, Highland cottage, Friday night. The guests were Miss Nellie E. Jackson, Mrs. Louise J. Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Morton, Miss Mary Chase, Mrs. Catherine G. Briggs, Dr. Carl S. Briggs, and the host and hostess. Following the chicken supper with all its accompaniments, the party sat by the fireplace and while the huge log was blazing, veritable interludes with piano solo, piano duet, violin and guitar, and violin, piano and cello were much enjoyed.

The auction at Good Cheer Hall Saturday evening netted $30 for the ladies in the contest with the gentlemen. Saturday noon a baked bean dinner was served at Good Cheer Hall to a large party.

Mrs. Agnes L. Morton is spending the week with her son, Ralph H. Penfold and family in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Dayton Holster were

RHEUMATISM

This nerve-racking disease is caused from impure blood and uric acid poison. External applications sometimes give temporary relief but won't cure the sure way to secure permanent results is to thoroughly eradicate from the blood all the impurities. No other medicine will drive out the poisons from your system. Keep the bowels, kidneys and liver in good condition as LYNN BARKS, the wonderful remedy that has proved its great merit the past 45 years.

LYNN BARKS can be had at all druggists, at 50 cents per bottle. Give it a good trial and you will know the difference.

CEDAR RAPIDS

ELECTRIC POWER

WILL BE TRANSMITTED TO MANSERNA NEXT YEAR.

Description of the Work Now Going On to Develop 160,000 Horsepower in the St. Lawrence River West of Montreal.

The contractors on the Cedar Rapids Manufacturing and Power construction work are stated to be well ahead of the requirements of their contract, the work throughout the summer having proceeded smoothly. No undue obstacles being met with.

The progress report issued by the company describes the location as follows:

About fifty miles west of Montreal the St. Lawrence river widens out into Lake St. Francis. Above Lake St. Francis is a long series of rapids principally by the name of the largest one, the Long Sault. Below Lake St. Francis, and nearer Montreal, lies another expansion of the river named Lake St. Louis, and between these two lakes the St. Lawrence falls a distance of about 80 feet, made up principally of three rapids, viz: Coteau, The Cedars, and the Cascade. Thirty-two feet of this total fall is in the Cedar Rapids, thirty miles to the west of Montreal.

The St. Lawrence River is one of the greatest rivers in the world; it drains a territory of about 300,000 square miles of which a very large percentage is lake area, and it is unique among all the rivers in the world in the steadiness of its flow. The ratio of the flow in the lowest and in the highest years being 3 to 1.

Comparing this with the other large rivers of the continent, such as the Susquehanna, which has a range of 75-1 and the Mississippi which has a range of about 25-1, it is evident that the St. Lawrence is remarkably uniform in its flow.

As a result of its magnitude, and of the fact that the greater proportion of the development would necessarily have to be made before any power could be obtained, the power stood idle until the control became vested in the Joint interests of the Shawinigan Water and Power Company and the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company.

The rapids at the Cedar extend over a distance of about two miles. In order to use this fall, it is necessary to concentrate this difference of level at one point. To do this a canal is being constructed along the North Bank of the river. The outer wall of the canal is an artificial bank formed of excavated rock taken from the canal section and made water-tight by clay filling on the inside.

This combination, rock-fill earth bank, is being built with ample factors of safety, and special precautions are being taken to prevent leakage or possible damage to this bank. As the maximum head against the bank will never be more than 30, it is evident that this type of construction, which is common throughout the world in the case of large water reservoirs, is the most economical, on account of the fact that all the materials for the construction of the bank are available at the site of the work.

The canal when finished will have its outer or smooth bank practically a straight line two miles long, and parallel thereto to a similar bank located on the natural flow of the river, and at a distance from the south bank of about 1,000 feet, and the total length of the canal from the ice fender above the Lake aux Vaches to the power-house will be about 12,000 feet. Extending across the lower end of the canal and forming a dam, is the power-house structure itself. This structure is of concrete, and in the powerhouse is concentrated the total fall of 53 feet by the difference of the level between the top and bottom of the Cedar Rapids.

Under its charter and contract with the Dominion Government, the Cedar Rapids Manufacturing and Power company has a right to take 50,000 cubic feet per second into its canal, which is practically a part of the river. This amount of water is sufficient to develop continuously 160,000 electrical horsepower.

The plans for the final development call for the installation of eighteen units of a normal capacity of 10,000 horsepower each, two of these units being regarded as spares.

In addition to the main units, there will be installed six water-driven exciter units. These exciter units have a capacity of 1,500 horsepower and operate at a speed of 150 R. P. M.

The people lack of this development are planning things on a very extensive scale, commencing with January 1914 the Aluminum Co. of America will be using over one hundred thousand horsepower in the manufacture of Aluminum and Aluminum wares. It is the intention of the Aluminum Co. of America to make Montreal a city of one hundred thousand people.

If you want the latest and our new models in Overalls before leaving.

RED CROSS SEALS.

The Maine Anti-Tuberculosis Association is to inaugurate its Red Cross seal campaign this week, and from now until Christmas the seals will be sold in Maine cities and towns from Fort Kent to Kittery. Mrs. G. H. Furbish, who for several years has been in charge of the sale conducted by the Central Maine Association, has been employed by the Maine Anti-Tuberculosis Association to make a canvass of the state and she will arrange with individuals and committees in the various towns and cities for the sale of the seals.

On her first trip, which begins this week, Mrs. Furbish will visit-Clinton, Dover, Foxcroft, Milo Junction, Millinocket and the towns on the Greenville branch of the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad. Her second trip will be through Aroostook county, after which she will visit Belfast, Rockland, Bath and other points along the Maine coast. Mrs. Furbish will then turn her attention to Western Maine, establishing her headquarters at Portland.

Regularly organized societies, employing a nurse or doing other active work, will be allowed, as heretofore, to retain 80 per cent. of the proceeds of all sales of the stamps. Of the remaining 20 per cent., half goes to the National, and half to the State Association.

All money coming into the treasury of the State Association as a result of the sales will be devoted to the employment of a State Nurse. She will visit localities not yet organized for tuberculosis work and, by co-operating with the physicians, will endeavor to demonstrate to people the pressing need of a vigorous anti-tuberculosis fight being made. This will offer a special inducement to committees which have not yet commenced active work, to sell the seals. The employment of a State Nurse has long been a cherished scheme of the State Association.

The sale of Red Cross Seals has been large in some localities of the state during the past three or four years. It has been particularly successful in Bangor, and in the territories covered by the Central Maine Association and the Washington County Association. There are many districts in the state where practically

LOCAL HISTORY.

Timothy Hastings, to whom it is addressed and dated at Bethel, N. H., March 12, 1892.

"Dear Sir: In answer to yours of the 12th, I will say that my father is very feeble and his mind is even weaker. I can give you only a few facts in regard to your inquiries.

"Jonathan Bean was born in Westmoreland, N. H., the place where the Bean family settled on arrival from England. Jonathan, my father, who was my grandfather, that when he was a small boy his father moved to Bethel, Maine. Jonathan was about 21 years of age when he married Abigail York in Bethel, he remaining there till they had three children born to them named respectively: Jonathan 2d, John and Benjamin. Jonathan, my grandfather, coming to Bethel to 1780. He was a Revolutionary soldier. He died about the year of 1807. As ever as we can ascertain, he was 73 years of age. His wife died some years later, but in Bethel.

"In regard to the other persons and families about my father can give but little information.

Jonathan's brother was born in Newbury, Mass. He married in Newbury. And Peter Austin came to Bethel from Newbury but he cannot give any history of them that will be satisfactory.

"Why I have not answered sooner to yours my father has been very busy and his mind weak and could not remember.

"Very respectfully,
(Signed) Frederick I. Bean.

"The Frederick I. Bean, it appears by Jonathan's history of Bethel, was born July 20, 1820, fourth child of Benjamin Bean and wife Priscilla Peabody, she of Bethel and Benjamin was a son of Jonathan Bean Jr., and resided in Bethel. He married Hannah Bean, the wife of Capt. Timothy Hastings was a daughter of Jonathan Bean and wife Molly Crockett of Bethel, and an older brother to Jonathan Bean Jr.

There were at least two members of a name as there are in the Bean family and there are confusion of statements of dates, and widely scattered records of relationship, as what I have here copied here indicate it is hardly safe to repeat anything printed outside the "real thing."

March 12th, 1892, for a consideration of $1000 John Russell and Hannah Bean wife—the daughter of Ezra Crockett and this Russell family resided upon the easterly side of the Androscoggin, not far from Middle Inverness—conveyed to Ben. Amos Hastings a tract of land beginning the bounds at "a point near the road on the line between the intervals lots No. 10 and 11, at a stake"—the original plan of the plantation showing the location, comparatively correctly located—then running easterly to the river to a stake, thence returning and running down the said river till a high bank is reached, thence on said bank" etc., etc. Ben. Amos Hastings then, for a consideration of $750, conveyed the premises to Capt. Timothy Hastings. This record shows two things: In 1802 what was then called "Swampy river" is now known by the same name and that then there were "high banks" upon the Capt. Timothy Hastings farm.

Upon the river road, which was of little established by the Board of County Commissioners in 1814, may now be seen a very prominently located and well kept cemetery between the said river and among the memorial stones appears that of Capt. Timothy and widow, settled and dated as follows:

CAPT. TIMOTHY HASTINGS
Born Oct. 21, 1780,
Died March 12, 1841.

HANNAH,
Widow of Capt. Timothy Hastings,
Born June 23, 1784,
Died Feb. 19, 1845.

This record shows that she lived a widow's life a period of forty years.

which lets in at the present time, a good deal of light upon the genealogical and personal history of the descendants, most of the farm and buildings remaining in the name. His shop stood upon the northerly side of the highway. In the genealogical department of Lapham's history of the town may be seen an extract of the obituary that appeared in print at the time of the close of the war of the Revolution till the end of the legal requirements of military "training" of town companies and Division "musters," military discussions over concerning elections of officers causing excitement to run high at times. The Hastings name from General down through the term of Colonel and Captain was constantly to use a modern slang phrase—"in the swim," so, when the terms of Colonel and Captain are found attached to the name of Timothy Hastings, and as there was a father and son by the same name, the safest way is to let military allusions to the early Hastings name alone severely as in the case of the early relationship of sentimental bargains between Beans and others unless one has before him the real record of marriage events, dates of births of children and deaths. There are scores upon scores of these that have never come in contact with printer's ink particularly grave-stone records.

A STEP FROM THE STREET

Into the arcade of our Store creates a possibility for eye shopping.

The arcade is 22 feet long. Once inside you shop with your eyes on a display of seasonable merchandise, such as rarely if ever displayed by a store in any place the size of Rumford. The windows forming the arcade and the merchandise displayed is merely a bagatelle to compare with what is contained in the interior of the Store.

THE INTERIOR

First to the right is our Women's and Misses' shoe department. Next our men's shoe department. In these departments are such well known makes of footwear as La France shoes for women, Spartan shoes for misses and children, Walk Overs, Franklin and Menzie shoes for men, J. F. S. shoes for boys. Continue along farther, and you find "hanging all the way" on the wall, the largest and most complete assortment of SUITS and OVERCOATS exhibited by any store in our town.

Next is our boy's suit and overcoat department, trousers and sweaters for men, most complete in every detail.

Makes, such as Benjamin and Washington clothes. The name of perfection in men's clothes are contained in our stock.

GO BACK

To entrance, look to the left and you find our men's furnishings department, a department where men and boys find what they want. Next is our Hat and Cap department, containing such makes as STETSON, KING-FLEX and GUYER HATS, best in the world products. Continue along the left side and you find a complete SHIRT department, showing splendid assortments of E. & W. SHIRTS, and other good makes.

IN THE CENTER

In found our Tailoring Booth, where we take orders for Men's Custom CLOTHES, made by ED. V. PRICE & CO., of Chicago, largest and best Tailors in the world of good made to order CLOTHES. The best and strongest recommendation for our CUSTOM department is our repeated and satisfied CUSTOMERS.

THEN TAKE A WALK

Up stairs, visit our TRUNK, BAG and SUIT CASE department. A department in itself occupying fifteen hundred square feet of floor space. Your wants are satisfied here if hand luggage and Trunks are your need.

We've been located in the same place for nineteen years. Our increasing business is the guarantee that our Customers are satisfied. The Store or Street floor space we occupy is 25 feet by 160 feet. We're complete outfitters to men and boys, women's, misses' and children's shoes. Our stock is one of the largest in the State.

WHY DO YOU NOT

Shop with us? It matters not what any merchant may claim, our claim, is that no other merchant can do more for you than we can, when good merchandise and reasonable prices are concerned.

MAIL ORDER HOUSES?

We're a mail order Store in every sense of the word, and we can sell you dependable merchandise better and with more satisfaction, so far as you are concerned, than mail order houses a thousand miles away. We deliver at your door free of any transportation charges, articles of value at reasonable prices, and there is a "come back clause" in all of our contracts with you when you buy. If you don't want the merchandise we deliver at your door, send it back and get your money. Our disposition to please you is our aim in every transaction.

Our Store is a progressive store in a progressive place. Merchants and mail order houses have nothing on us. If the merchandise we sell you is not satisfactory "fire it back." Can you ask for more?

We're a mail order house within a stone's throw of your home, try us and watch the results.

Rumford is the center of the Earth, so far as Oxford County is concerned, and one of the largest and most progressive places in the State of Maine. We are a very prosperous community. Millions have been expended here in the construction of some of the largest mills in the world, and a million more of dollars is being expended here this year for permanent improvements. We're a lot of good merchants here, with large stocks and well kept stores.

Come to Rumford, the Power and Maple City of New England, trade with Rumford Merchants, you'll get the "bug" of prosperity into your blood, but ALWAYS come to one store first, if you want merchandise that is dependable, with courteous treatment thrown in the bargain. If you are not a resident of Rumford, try our mail order method of doing things.

OURS is a stock so complete that you'll do well to try us out.

Cleanings Here, and Everywhere

But Mostly In Oxford

BY LEONARD B. CHAP

CAPT. TIMOTHY AND H. (BEAN) HASTINGS.

There were six children in the Timothy Hastings family respectively: 1, Mary; 2, Timothy; 3, Cyrus; 4, O'Neil; 5, Sarah; and 6, St. John, all united in marriage. As I intimated in the graveyards of Bethel visited and copies made of them and then printed in full modern index some one may wonder "labor of love" in this regard. It would be a public benefit for thus doing would be entitled to a place of honor in the history of the world.

He was much in office, not military but in civil affairs, as a selectman, Representative to the Legislature, and otherwise. One of his last worldly abidings was examined by a person with a character who undoubtedly was to the sunny side of life.

THIS WILL.

In the name of God Amen. I, Timothy Hastings of Bethel, County of Oxford, State of Maine, do make and declare this instrument to last Will and Testament, revoking all others.

First. All my debts are to be paid and punctually paid a legacies hereinafter bequeathed to be discharged as soon as circumstances will permit and in manner here directed.

Second. To my wife, Hannah, I give and bequeath the use and benefit of my whole estate and personal during her natural life, excepting such parts thereof especially disposed of hereafter, and bequeath to my wife Hannah all my household furnishings.

Third. I give and bequeath to O'Neil H. Hastings a note by Alexander Jewett of two dollars.

Fourth. I give and bequeath to daughter Sarah J. S. two hundred dollars to be paid her when she arrives at the age of twenty-one years or a home at my last dwelling, whichever it, so long as she shall single.

Fifth. I give and bequeath to son St. John two hundred dollars to be paid him when he shall have attained the age of twenty-one years, maintenance till he shall be twenty years old.

Sixth. I give and bequeath to my children—viz: Mary; Timothy; Cyrus; Sarah J. C. a sum of five dollars to be paid to or from the date of my decease.

Seventh. It is my wish that my wife and my son Timothy, be the executors of my will and estate.

Eighth. It is my will also that where property may be left at the decease of my wife, it may be equally among all of my children.

Ninth. It is my will that my estate if they shall think it expedient the benefit of the family may exchange some portions of my estate.

Witnessed and sealed February 2, 1843.
